PATHWAYS TO LIFE

A GUIDE FOR CHURCHES TO HELP PREGNANT AND PARENTING MOMS IN NEED

INTRODUCTION

Within these pages you will find a practical guide. Bearing in mind your church's unique personality, cultural surroundings, and often existing ministries, this guide presents ideas and models on how to become involved, or expand your reach to serve pregnant and parenting women and families as they face difficult circumstances.

We have determined seven reasons pregnant mothers in crisis identify as to why they sought an abortion. Your church is likely involved in responding to one or more of these reasons – and you may not even realize it. We call these the seven categories of care.

Each of the seven chapters in this guide corresponds with one of the seven categories referred to above. Each chapter includes:

- A Section A, Basic, Collaborate: Ideas on partnering with local life-affirming assistance providers to strengthen the safety net of support for pregnant and parenting moms and families in need.
- B Section B, Advanced, Provide Direct Service: Ideas to launch your own life-affirming assistance program.
- C Section C, Educate Your Church: Curricula, books, and articles your members, either corporately or in small groups, can use to learn more about this category.

We pray you find new or additional ways to help pregnant and parenting moms and their families in your own community.

For life together,

Jill and Chaney

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

JILL STANEK

JILL graduated from South Suburban College in South Holland, Illinois, with a degree in Registered Nursing.

In 1999, while working in the Labor & Delivery Department at Christ Hospital in Oak Lawn, Illinois, Jill discovered babies were being aborted alive and left to die without medical care. Read more of Jill's story on page 6-11. Jill's experience was life-changing and propelled her into pro-life activism as a speaker and writer.

A member of the Susan B. Anthony List team since 2015, Jill joined Her PLAN as Community Outreach Manager in 2020.

Jill and husband Rich have three married children and 14 grandchildren – 13 boys and one princess!

CHANEY MULLINS GOOLEY

CHANEY is a graduate of the University of Virginia, majoring in Architectural History and Sociology. She also studied at the John Jay Institute for Faith, Society, and Law.

Chaney previously worked for the U.S. branch of the Amore Project, a theology of the body-based ministry; for Divine Mercy Care, where she helped develop a pro-life certification program for OB/GYNs; and on the board of the Healing Center International.

Chaney joined the Susan B. Anthony List in 2019 as Her PLAN's Program Manager.

Chaney and husband Patrick reside with their cat Amy.

“ A word about the abortion stories included in this guide...

Throughout Pathways to Life you'll find personal accounts written by pregnant mothers who underwent abortions. We found most of these narratives at ShoutYourAbortion.com.

Launched in 2015, Shout Your Abortion is self-described as a “movement working to normalize abortion through art, media, and community events all over the country.” Its website invites pro-abortion, post-abortive mothers to relate their abortion experiences.

SYA's goal is to paint abortion as a normal activity and heralded constitutional right, like voting or free speech.

The problem is abortion is neither and never will be.

Ironically, the very forum intended to show abortion pride instead unmasks its depravity. The stories are heart breaking, and a few are horrific. They show that most times abortion is an unwanted last resort, compelled by tragic circumstances.

We share some of these stories throughout this guide, without commentary, because pro-life commentary isn't needed to point out the pain described by abortion advocates themselves about their own experiences.

Their own words make our case.

Welcoming Life in Virginia

The Commonwealth of Virginia is a state in policy flux. Until recently, Virginia was a political battleground with limitations on abortion funding under the exchange program established by the Affordable Care Act.

In 2021, Virginia's Democratic-controlled legislature enacted a law to allow exchange insurance plans to cover elective abortions. Virginia has also repealed its informed consent law for abortion and now permits nurse practitioners to perform abortions.

Life/Maternity Indicators

- Virginia saw an increase of more than seven percent in total abortions (16,474) in 2018. Meanwhile, the abortion rate, 9.8 abortions per 1,000 women of childbearing age in 2018, remained below the national average of 13.5 abortions per 1,000 women for 2017. The state has trended in a more legally permissive direction on abortion for several election cycles. Aided by a rise in chemical abortions of 17.1 percent in 2018, the state abortion rate turned upward after a decade of decline, but ticked down again in 2019 to a rate of 9.2.

- Virginia's maternal mortality rate is below the national average, at 16.0 deaths per 100,000 live births in 2018. The state's pre-term birth rate, infant mortality rate, cesarean birth rate, and rate of low birthweight all hover near the national average. The teenage birth rate in Virginia is substantially below the national average at 13.6 per 1,000 females ages 15-19. Nonmarital births, which can connote less extended family support, were at 35% of all births, also below the national average. Eleven percent of women of childbearing age (15-44) are uninsured, a figure just below the national total at 12 percent.

Key Services and Trends

Pregnancy help centers (PHCs) are on the front lines offering alternatives to abortion in Virginia. The state had 32 facilities that performed abortions in 2017, half of which were free-standing clinics. Planned Parenthood now operates six abortion facilities in the commonwealth.

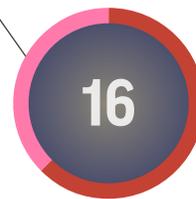

As elsewhere, pregnancy help centers outnumber abortion facilities by a wide margin. The state has 57 pregnancy centers, of which 35 are denoted as “medical” in nature.

Virginia has no state-based program that specifically benefits PHCs, but it does offer a tax credit that some pro-life pregnancy help providers may benefit from. To be eligible, the recipient charity must be a 501(c)(3), providing community services, education, housing assistance, or job training. At least 50% of the total number of persons served by the organization during the calendar year, program year, or most recent fiscal year ended must be low-income persons or eligible students with a disability.

Taxpayers receive 65% of the value of the donation. The minimum donation for which a credit can be obtained is $500 per year, and the maximum is $125,000. No more than $500,000 in tax credits may be approved per year.

Adoption Tax Credit

Virginia is one of the states that does not offer an adoption tax credit that reduces state income tax liability. In fact, Virginia’s income tax code features a personal exemption for spouse and dependents of only $930, one of the smaller tax breaks among the states. (Michigan, for example, recently adopted legislation increasing its personal exemption to $4,900 in tax year 2021.)

Virginians can claim the federal adoption credit, which has a maximum value of $14,440, is tied to specific expenses, and is available for a wide range of adoptions, including non-special needs and both domestic and international adoptions. Expenses incurred in completing an eligible adoption can be carried forward and claimed in subsequent years if the full amount of the credit is not claimed in year one. Because the value of the federal credit is well below the actual cost of most adoptions, enactment of a credit in Virginia would be a boon to families. At present there are 5,400 children in foster care in the commonwealth, more than 700 of whom are ready for adoption into permanent homes.

Safe Haven Law

Safe haven laws, sometimes called “Baby Moses” laws, have been enacted in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. They allow a parent, under limited conditions, to anonymously relinquish a baby up to a certain number of days after birth, with no questions asked and no culpability under state child abandonment laws and criminal laws. This legal reform began in Texas in 1999, and to date 4,127 babies have been relinquished this way nationwide.

Virginia has a safe haven law that allows a parent to relinquish a child for whom she can no longer care, up to 14 days after birth, into the custody of either a) a hospital with 24/7 emergency services or b) a rescue squad that employs emergency medical technicians. The relinquishment occurs with no questions asked or legal responsibility incurred (if the child is unharmed).

Rural Services for Mothers

Rural health care in the United States is plagued with challenges for staffing, facilities, and finances. A 2020 report from the March of Dimes identified U.S. counties it calls “maternity care deserts,” places where there is neither a hospital providing maternity care and delivery services nor even a single OB-GYN.

Some of the counties are sparsely populated, but others are experiencing a shortage of facilities and providers. Overall, the report says, there are 1,095 such counties in the United States and 146,451 babies were born in these counties in 2017. According to coverage of the 2020 report, some 47 percent of Virginia counties are either maternity care deserts or have very limited access to maternity care.

Transportation for expectant mothers to obtain OB-GYN care is a common problem. Virginia has a relatively moderate rate of un-insurance for women of childbearing age, as noted above.

CHEMICAL ABORTION UPDATE

As of September 2021, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Food and Drug Administration has suspended a requirement that the abortion pill be dispensed in-person. As a result, in states without their own regulations requiring that the abortion pill be dispensed in-person, the abortion pill is now available via telemedicine and through the mail. The following websites distribute the abortion pill via the mail in Virginia. In addition, other unlicensed websites may also mail abortion pills to Virginia against regulations, including international websites.

No woman wants an abortion as she wants an ice cream cone or a Porsche. She wants an abortion as an animal, caught in a trap, wants to gnaw off its own leg.

– Frederica Mathewes-Green

That's how panicked and desperate pregnant mothers in crisis can be.

A calming voice. Direction. Guidance. A simple “You can do this.”

Mentorship is often her greatest need.

This is where pregnancy help centers (PHCs) shine. They have the training and experience. They have the answers. They have the specialized compassion.

On the following pages are suggestions for collaborating with your local PHC or other case management organizations to help your church members and community.

Basic

COLLABORATE

Partner with assistance providers to serve pregnant and parenting moms in need

How collaborating will serve your church

Pastoral confidence: Through relationships with Her PLAN assistance providers, you and your leaders can refer pregnant congregants with confidence to experts who will provide ethical guidance.

Resources: Your pregnant congregants in need will have access to maternity and baby clothes, baby furniture, diapers, cribs, car seats, strollers, and more.

Life skills: Many pregnancy help centers (PHCs) offer classes on parenting, healthy relationships, money management, after-abortion healing, and more. These can help your pregnant congregants with inadequate support systems get proper training on fundamentals as well as break free from generational dysfunctions.

Services to your church: PHCs have materials and trained staff to teach risk avoidance/healthy relationships/abstinence classes to your youth group, train your congregants and leaders how to identify victims of sex trafficking, and more.

How collaborating will serve your community

Your local PHC will rest assured knowing clients it refers to your church will receive acceptance, spiritual guidance, and help. Don't forget to invite PHC staff to church, too!

Did You Know?

According to data from The Guttmacher Institute, 54% of women who have abortions identify themselves as Christians. Our research found that four in 10 women were regularly attending church at the time of their abortion.

– Care Net, “Abortion in the Church” makinglifedisciples.com/about

VICTORY

*Where there is no guidance the people fail.
But in an abundance of counselors
there is victory.*

– Proverbs 11:14, NASB

How your church can serve and collaborate with your local Pregnancy Help Center

Find U.S. PHC locations at optionline.org/center-locator or scan the QR code.

VOLUNTEER

Service: Ask your PHC if congregants can fill service needs.

Volunteer Day: Sponsor a church volunteer day for bigger projects.

Pro Bono: Encourage church members to offer free professional services to clients of life-affirming assistance providers in this category. Examples include (but not limited to):

- counseling; life coaching
- social work

Internships: Does your local PHC or other partners in this category offer internships? If not, ask them to consider doing so. Along with helping the provider, this will reinforce the value of life and life-affirming work to your high school and college students while satisfying service hours required by many schools. Win, win, win!

HELPERS

By yourself you're unprotected.

With a friend you can face the worst.

Can you round up a third?

A three-stranded rope isn't easily snapped.

– Ecclesiastes 4:12, The Message

RESOURCES

Baby shower: Host a baby shower for your PHC.

PRO-LIFE ACTION LEAGUE

Theological structure: Interdenominational prolifeaction.org/action/babyshower/

Details: Ask your nearest PHC what its needs are. Common items include diapers, baby clothes, and formula. Hold an event or collect donated items on a given Sunday.

Diapers: Conduct a diaper drive for your PHC.

Spare change: It all adds up! Easy ways for your members to give to your local PHC include taking part in a churchwide baby bottle drive or rounding up their credit card purchases. How to round up those purchases? There's an app for that!

HERITAGE HOUSE (buy bottles)

Theological structure: Interdenominational hh76.org/default.aspx?GroupID=201

Details: Provide members with special baby bottles to fill with spare change and return on a designated date. Ask your PHC for bottles or purchase them yourself.

CHOOSE LIFE MARKETING (publicity ideas)

Theological structure: Interdenominational tinyurl.com/HerPLAN1A1

Details: Find ready made baby bottle campaign promotional materials, including a video and social media graphics that can be customized for your church.

ROUNDUP APP

Theological structure: Secular roundupapp.com

Details: Credit and debit card purchases are rounded up to the next dollar and donated. (Your PHC must join the network.)

Gift: Assemble “Love Boxes” to gift pregnant mothers considering abortion.

EMBRACE GRACE

Theological structure: Interdenominational embracegrace.com/get-support and embracegrace.com/brave-girl-letter

Details: Assemble and drop off “love boxes” of gifts at your PHC encouraging moms to be brave and come to church for love and support. Add handwritten “Dear Brave Girl” notes of encouragement.

Reward: If your PHC offers incentives to pregnant moms who complete learning or coaching programs, offer to underwrite the cost of rewards (such as car seats or pack ‘n plays).

Did You Know?

According to the National Institute of Family Life Advocates (nifla.org/medical-clinic-conversion/), 80% of women at risk for abortion decided not to abort after viewing an ultrasound of their baby's heartbeat.

Disciple: Partner with a Christian mentorship program for parenting teens.

TEEN MOTHER CHOICES INTERNATIONAL

Theological structure: Interdenominational
teenmotherchoices.org/

Details: A faith-based program designed to encourage, equip, and support teen moms, ages 13 through 23, who have already given birth and who have courageously chosen to parent their children.

WALKING WITH MOMS IN NEED

Theological structure: Catholic walkingwithmoms.com/

Details: A parish-based service program dedicated to accompanying pregnant women in need by collaborating with local providers, better communicating available help, and discovering or creating new resources to fill in service gaps based on the gifts of the parish community.

NO EXCUSES

Rescue those unjustly sentenced to death, and save those stumbling toward slaughter.

Don't excuse yourself by saying, "Look, we didn't know."

For God understands all hearts, and he sees you.

He who guards your soul knows you knew.

He will repay all people as their actions deserve.

– Proverbs 24:11-12, NLT

Yes! Most child welfare programs, like children's homes, developed in churches.

In the early part of the century, social work became professional, and congregations began to give financial support but were less involved.

Professional development within churches represents a vital component for the church to effectively increase its involvement in social efforts.

We desperately need social workers who can provide professional services and see their roles as church leaders and church representatives as they provide those services.

– Dr. Diana Garland, Professor of Social Work, "New Social Work Program to Focus on Churches," Baylor University, March 1998
tinyurl.com/HerPLAN1B2

Did You Know?

Less than 1% of the 300,000 Christian churches in the country have single parent support groups. The few that do often focus on the single moms that are already in their church.

This is a big problem in light of the fact that only 33% of single moms attend church. In order to grow your support group, you must focus on reaching those outside your church.

Addressing two common concerns

Won't a single mothers' ministry endorse sin or produce more single motherhood?

No. Drug recovery programs do not endorse drug use. They simply meet people where they are. We are doing the same thing with single mothers.

Millions of single mothers live in the U.S. Do we simply ignore their existence out of fear that the ministry process could get a little messy?

Well, we could, but that is certainly not what Jesus did. He was in the midst of our messy situations. I encourage you to be too.

We already have a very limited budget. How can we afford to start a single moms' ministry?

The truth is you cannot afford not to have a single moms' ministry. The demographic is rapidly growing. The most successful churches (those that are both the fastest-growing and most active in saving lost souls) are the ones who think outside the box and use their God-given creativity to meet people's needs.

Single moms' ministry does not have to be complicated. In short, it's a meeting place, a casual gathering where single moms fellowship. It does not have to start huge or with any budget, really.

Did You Know?

I began to have serious struggles with what I was doing. It had entered a part of my spirit and sat there like an ulcer, nagging me with an unrelenting ache.

When I would go home at night, incidents of reaching for alcohol to numb me started to increase. In the drowning-out process, I would tell myself that the pain was worth it to provide for my kids...

I found myself very drawn to the presence of a woman named Mary, one of the prayer volunteers who stood with the protesters outside of our clinic, because her demeanor was so different from the rest.

Where they were mostly hostile and boisterous, she simply prayed her rosary. I approached her and asked if I could have one. “Do you know how to pray the rosary?” Mary asked.

I told her as a former Catholic, I did. When she gave me one, it seemed to start something new in me. I went from rationalizing the reasons why I worked there to a firm conviction that I was going to leave Planned Parenthood. I began going to her for prayer before every shift.

Finally, the morning came when I arrived in front of Mary with a slightly different need. “I’m only here today to say goodbye to you. I’m going to leave after this shift, and I need you to pray for me because when I walk away from here, I’m never coming back. And I don’t know what I’m going to do.”

She prayed with me immediately. Scared to death about my future without a job and still in shock, I surrendered everything in my life to God....Through tears and confession, I felt changed, even new. It was and is the most groundbreaking event of my life—when God called me back to Himself.

HER MIND
AT THE
TIME

“ I DO NOT KNOW HOW I FELT, BEING A CHRISTIAN: BUT I KNEW I WAS OUT OF SORTS TO CARRY A PREGNANCY.

I had my first abortion after a year from college. I asked God for forgiveness and promised Him it would never happen again.... I was wrong!

I am 33, married for 6 years with two sons.

I found out I was pregnant [again] in December. My youngest was only 5 months, and I deliver by C section. My pregnancies are quite challenging.

I just could not go through the ordeal just after 5 months. I was emotionally unstable, my marriage was just not going well, I had no help at home, I knew taking care of a toddler while pregnant would be a handful.

I do not know how I felt, being a Christian: but I knew I was out of sorts to carry a pregnancy.

I went alone, I knew my husband would never approve. I had a medical abortion about 2 months ago. I was about 5 weeks pregnant. Still recovering from the emotions that come from terminating a pregnancy.

No one offered me much support and understanding, not even my husband. It's not a choice I made lightly this time around. I asked God to forgive me, I asked Him to understand....

I sometimes wonder if I had maybe been strong enough or got the support I needed, I would still be pregnant, I keep imagining it would have been a girl, but I also know I was just not ready.

I do not talk much about it. I pray, I know God has forgiven me, I know He is a good father who understands, knows our weakness as humans....

I pray and hope to carry one last pregnancy, when my son turns 2. Praying for a girl.

PATHWAYS

To view Pathways to Life online with easily accessible hyperlinks, go to herplan.org, or use QR code:

In its 1973 Doe v. Bolton decision, the companion case to Roe v. Wade, the Supreme Court defined “health of the mother” so broadly that abortions can be obtained for basically any reason.

That said, serious health issues can arise during pregnancy, as described in “Her mind at the time” on this page. These deserve to be addressed, while not condoning abortion as the solution.

It is also important to ensure pregnant mothers in need obtain good prenatal care and health care.

Then, there is the “well-being” component in this category, which eye-opening research by the Vitae Foundation (vitaefoundation.org/trauma-of-abortion/) has found to be a significant hurdle to choosing life.

Vitae learned that some pregnant mothers, especially who are young and didn’t plan this, think their internal selves will die if they have a baby:

Pregnancy and motherhood completely shatter some women’s ideas of who they are and who they plan to be. In their minds, motherhood is equated with a kind of death....

Whether right or wrong in the abstract, under the panic of this life-changing crisis, abortion can seem to align itself with the deep and universal instinct of self-preservation....

The pro-life tendency to focus exclusively on the child, rather than on the woman’s own circumstances and emotional needs, only deepens the woman’s sense of isolation and despair – the very emotions that often lead her to choose abortion.

HER MIND
AT THE
TIME

“Abortion can seem to align itself with the deep and universal instinct of self-preservation.”

“ Have you ever heard of Hyperemesis Gravidarum? It happens in 1 – 2% of pregnancies....

Dehydration, excessive vomiting (sometimes uncontrollable), constant nausea and dizziness, weight loss, malnutrition, sensitivity to light, sound, smell and touch, aversions to foods and water... the list goes on....

As I excessively vomited, unable to consume food or drink each day, I felt the weight of death on me and my unborn child. Medical interventions were failing us....

Would I stay for my born children, or would I go with my unborn?

I chose abortion. I chose life.

COLLABORATE

Partner with assistance providers to serve pregnant and parenting moms in need

How collaborating will serve your church:

Pastoral confidence: Through relationships with Her PLAN assistance providers, you and your leaders will know they are recommending health providers who have been thoroughly vetted as life-affirming and holistic. Then, once a mother chooses life, the continuum of life-affirming health and prenatal care will ensure better outcomes for both mom and baby.

Resources: Your leaders will have a deep well of resources to draw from on a variety of health and well-being needs facing pregnant and parenting mothers in your church and community.

Services to your church: A healthier flock! Many health providers offer classes and support groups on healthy pregnancy, birth planning, successful breastfeeding, post-partum depression, and natural fertility planning.

TO YOUR HEALTH

On hearing this, Jesus said, "It is not the healthy who need a doctor, but the sick.

But go and learn what this means:

"I desire mercy, not sacrifice."

– Matthew 9:12-13a, NIV

Did You Know?

A pregnancy without prenatal care is a dangerous pregnancy, even if the mother has no known health conditions or pre-determined pregnancy risks. For example:

- Pregnancy complications, such as gestational diabetes, miscarriage, high blood pressure, and preeclampsia
- Worsening of chronic conditions, such as diabetes, asthma, and heart problems
- Ante- and post-partum depression and other adverse mental health issues
- Negative effects on the baby, like preterm delivery or low birth weight

Perhaps the most stunning statistic? Babies whose mothers received no prenatal care are 5x more likely to die than those whose mothers received regular prenatal care.

How collaborating will serve your community:

Awareness: A large number of our recommended health providers offer discounted or free services to women who are in poverty or uninsured. Women just need to know. Plus, many include a spiritual dimension in their care.

How your church can serve and collaborate with life-affirming providers:

VOLUNTEER

Recruit: Recruit church members with a health care background to volunteer in their area of specialty at a local health provider in our network.

Pray: Consider opportunities to pray for health care providers, such as conducting a prayer walk at a facility.

Internships: Do your partnering assistance providers in this category offer internships? If not, ask them to consider doing so. Along with helping the provider, this will reinforce the value of life and life-affirming work to your high school and college students, while satisfying service hours required by many schools. Win, win, win!

RESOURCES

Equipment: Offer to purchase needed or updated equipment and supplies. Ask if a facility has an Amazon wish list or online registry.

SPACE

Host: Offer to provide a place to teach classes mentioned on the previous page. Also consider offering free childcare services or space during the class.

More than 2.2 million women of childbearing age live in maternity care deserts (1,095 counties) that have no hospital offering obstetric care, no birth center, and no obstetric provider.

In 2017, almost 150,000 babies were born to women living in maternity care deserts.

Every year in this country, approximately 700 women die of complications related to pregnancy and childbirth and more than 50,000 women experience severe maternal morbidity, a life-threatening complication as a result of labor and delivery.

HER MIND
AT THE
TIME

“I HAD THIS IDEA
YOU CAN’T LET LIFE
GET IN THE WAY OF YOUR PLANS.”

“The first time I was 25, in New York. From the time I was a teenager, the idea of having an abortion if pregnant was a no-brainer. I had this idea you can’t let life get in the way of your plans.

My friend drove me. The procedure was in a tiny, bright, white room – it was like a nightmare, but it was over really, really quickly.

They moved me into this communal healing room. Women were reclining on big, pillowy chairs. I remember feeling comforted, warm – we’d all been through the same experience.

Two years ago, I was in Oklahoma. I wasn’t given a choice in method – I got the pill. My boyfriend worked in Idaho – I was alone.

They gave me all this paperwork that said, “This is serious. You could die,” and an antibiotic, painkiller, and a latex glove and a pill. At home, the antibiotic made me vomit and sh everywhere.

After my contractions started, my hands turned into claws. I was dehydrated. I had this underlying feeling that I was being made to suffer, to repent for my situation....

I got up to pee, and this gray golf-ball thing came out.

I thought, so I just flush the toilet?

Do we try as hard as they do?

“Member organizations work across our network to remove financial and logistical barriers to abortion access. Some of them work with clinics to help pay for your abortion. Some of them offer support such as transportation, childcare, translation, doula services, and somewhere to stay if you have to travel to get your abortion.”

How collaborating will serve your church

Pastoral confidence: Your leaders will have resources at their fingertips to help your pregnant or parenting mothers in need. An array of life-affirming assistance providers specialize in caring for this segment of the population.

Congregants will know their church community is tangibly investing in their own people in need as well as the community around them. They will also have access to the same information (online) as their leaders to aid those in their own sphere of influence.

Services to your church: Life-affirming providers in this category offer educational help (scholarship applications, GEDs, English as a second language, etc.), work training (technology, resume building, professional wardrobe, etc.), life-skills training (budgeting, debt consulting, etc.), and financial help (rent, utilities, health care, etc.).

Life-affirming providers can be asked to teach a class at your church on any of the aforementioned resources.

Christ was constantly meeting people where they were (both figuratively and iteratively), not waiting for them in the church.

He met the Samaritan woman at the well in Samaria. He met the tax collector Zacchaeus going through Jericho. He met the woman with the issue of blood on the way to Jairus’s house. He met the dying thief on the cross....

The reality is that unless we can truly appreciate where others are, we cannot hope to be effective in bringing them to Christ. Whatever it takes without compromising who you are, become that for the cause of Christ.

Did You Know?

The two age groups where women are biologically most fertile coincide with the age groups where women seek higher education and establish their careers - in a culture that says they can't have a baby at the same time. Hence, the highest number of abortions fall in these groups. The Church can encourage and assist her to fulfill her dreams and goals without killing her baby.

This category covers a lot of territory.

Boiled down, it encompasses the two most basic tiers of Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs, if you remember these from your health class...

JUST SURVIVE

Think survival, and you'll better understand the desperate state in which a pregnant mother with these needs may find herself.

You'll also better understand why she might think abortion is not simply an option but her only option.

The good news is, there is help.

You as a church leader can either be that help or point the way to help through the resources in our directory.

COLLABORATE

Partner with assistance providers to serve pregnant and parenting moms in need

How collaborating will serve your church

Pastoral confidence: As of 2018, 26.8% of families headed by single women live below the poverty level.* Your flock includes some of these human statistics, and our directory and resources will help you help them.

*SOURCE: Census Bureau, tinyurl.com/HerPLAN4A1

Services to your church: Do you know where to turn for legal help if a mother is about to be evicted? Or isn't receiving child support she is owed? Or needs her car repaired? Or needs her roof fixed - or even a roof over her head? We know and want you to know.

Plus, our life-affirming assistance providers host diet and nutrition classes, legal clinics, seminars on understanding government benefits, and more.

How collaborating will serve your community

All the resources we list for your congregants are also available to your community. People just need to know.

Jesus said in Matthew 5:7 (NIV), "Blessed are the merciful, for they will be shown mercy." Helping disadvantaged pregnant and parenting moms in your community is mercy in action.

MERCY

"Lord, when did we see you hungry and feed you, or thirsty and give you something to drink? When did we see you a stranger and invite you in, or needing clothes and clothe you?" The King will reply, "Truly I tell you, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers and sisters of mine, you did for me."

– Matthew 25:37-40, NIV

How your church can serve and collaborate with life-affirming providers

VOLUNTEER

Build: Look for opportunities to support pregnant or parenting moms through home-building or home repair ministries, such as Habitat for Humanity.

Internships: Do your partnering assistance providers in this category offer internships? If not, ask them to consider doing so. Along with helping the provider, this will reinforce the value of life and life-affirming work to your high school and college students while satisfying service hours required by many schools. Win, win, win!

Pro Bono: Encourage church members to offer free professional services to clients of life-affirming assistance providers in this category. Examples include (but not limited to):

- builders, electricians, plumbers
- law, law enforcement

RESOURCES

Feed: Gather food staples to meet nutritional needs of pregnant and breastfeeding moms for food pantries and homeless shelters.

PRO TIP: Discuss food options with your food pantry before collecting. Search “pantry staples for pregnant women” for ideas.

Do we look the other way because it's easier?

It is in many ways an affront to suggest to women, who are compelled to have an abortion out of poverty and an inability to afford childcare, that they have “chosen” their abortion....

Abortion cannot be a solution for poverty; thereby surreptitiously allowing those in authority to abdicate responsibility of tackling socio-economic inequality.

– “A Woman’s Right to Choose: Five Minutes with Stella Creasy”
BRITISH MEDICAL JOURNAL, 2019
bmj.com/content/367/bmj.l6424

Basics: Conduct a drive for items pregnant, breastfeeding, and new mothers commonly need, such as prenatal vitamins, maternity clothes, formula, diapers, baby toys, or baby furniture to donate to homeless shelters and pregnancy resource centers.

Rides: Underwrite cab or Uber fares for pregnant and parenting mothers to attend appointments with PLAN network providers.

“Transportation Services”

Theological structure: Interdenominational

PCC’s internal guidelines:

tinyurl.com/HerPLAN4A2

Cab service guidelines:

tinyurl.com/HerPLAN4A3

Details: Reducing the number of no-show appointments has been an ongoing goal for us. We discovered transportation issues were a common denominator. Since incepting our cab service program, we have seen our monthly no-show rate decrease from over 20% to between 11%-12%.

UNTO OTHERS...

Suppose a brother or sister is without clothes and daily food. If one of you says to them, “Go in peace; keep warm and well fed,” but does nothing about their physical needs, what good is that? In the same way, faith by itself, if it not accompanied by action, is dead.

– James 2:15-17, NIV

HER MIND
AT THE

To whoever has gone through this, I can speak for a lot of us and say that it has been one of the hardest, or the hardest decision I have made in my life. Specially after knowing he was there, he was there for 3 months and I let him go.

I wanted to give him the best life he could have, and right now... we can't.

At first I would tell my boyfriend I was scared, because it was as if we were killing him, without giving him the chance to live.

But what kind of life was I going to give him when I don't even have my own place? What if I couldn't pay for his clothes? What if we run out of food and now he's not getting good nutrition? What if he gets sick and I can't take him to the hospital?

All those things matter so so so much. It's not just about having him, it is taking care of him and giving him everything. Keeping him healthy and warm, showing him that life is beautiful. We couldn't do that at the moment.

So I had to go through with it.

The day before the appointment I couldn't sleep.

I kept touching my stomach, I prayed to God to forgive me for what I was going to do.

It was the right thing. I knew in my heart that it was. Not even for me but for him or her.

March 23rd, an angel was sent to heaven. One that will look after my boyfriend and I.

I want to say sorry for not being able to keep you. Maybe I should've been stronger or I should've just done it without looking back. But I had to let you go baby. It was the hardest thing I have ever done. My heart is broken. I think about it every day. It is something that will stick with me, something I will pray for all the time.

We love you, we love you even though we don't have you.

Did You Know?

Maternal prenatal nutrition and the child’s nutrition in the first 2 years of life (1,000 days) are crucial factors in a child’s neurodevelopment and lifelong mental health.

Child and adult health risks, including obesity, hypertension, and diabetes, may be programmed by nutritional status during this period.

Calories are essential for growth of both fetus and child but are not sufficient for normal brain development....

Failure to provide key nutrients during this critical period of brain development may result in lifelong deficits in brain function despite subsequent nutrient repletion.

The Eight “S” Words

OF LIFE TRANSFORMATION

Launched in 1906, Citygate Network (formerly Gospel Rescue Missions) is North America’s oldest and largest community of independent, faith-based crisis shelters. Citygate’s work focuses on breaking the bonds of destructive habits, bad decisions (made by or forced upon the person), and enslaving conditions. Citygate says the breadth of life transformation work can be described with eight “S” words.

To help them to feel they are valued and loved no matter what issues they’re going through.”

LEGAL SUPPORT

Host a monthly legal clinic, either on-going or on a weekly or monthly basis.

CHRISTIAN LEGAL AID

Theological Structure: Interdenominational
tinyurl.com/HerPLAN4B5

Details: CLA is a ministry. Often, clients’ legal problems are tied to interrelated emotional, relational, and spiritual problems. So in addition to helping with the legal issues, CLA volunteers try to minister to clients holistically by providing a compassionate listening ear, spiritual counsel, and prayer.

Often clients are equally or even more blessed by the spiritual component of CLA than the legal services. Many of them come to CLA full of anger, despondency, and bitterness. They might not have friends to turn to and may never step foot in a church, but because CLA attorneys can help them with a tangible need, they are more open to sharing their lives and pouring out their hearts. CLA attorneys are there to be a witness to the love of Christ.

Pro-Tip: Legal

We have found that women in dire straits often lack legal documents, such as birth certificates, passports, IDs, and Social Security cards for themselves and their children, and lack the skills to pull them together without guidance.

Launch a courthouse ministry

BRIDGE THE GAP MINISTRIES

Theological Structure: Interdenominational
bridgethegapministries.org

Pastor David Burgher holds church at one of the most unique places you'll ever hear: Georgia's Gwinnett County Courthouse.

Pastor David providentially meets, counsels, and prays with people and families in the courthouse halls.

"The courthouse is the city gate to the whole county," explained Pastor David to us over lunch. "Everything that goes wrong in the county culminates right there."

Pastor David ticked off a list: "Child custody cases, probate, DUIs, drugs, license certificates, marriages, guns, evictions, death certificates, adoptions, divorces, and tax issues. Any major sin in the entire Bible, or major life event, goes through that building."

The legal needs of pregnant and parenting mothers in crisis include overdue child support, establishing paternity, custody battles, evictions, and restraining orders against violent partners.

Pastor David Burgher

I asked how Pastor David meets people.

"The most unasked and powerful question ever is: 'What is it I can pray for you now?' This is the biggest open door," he said.

"The question denotes that you care about the person. It denotes you don't have all the answers, and you're inviting the CEO of the Universe into that conversation."

He continued, "In the courthouse it's not how much you know but how much you care."

Pastor David finds people are ready to open up "big time." He's on the phone a lot, too.

"Stopping to pray right where you are is 90% of the miracle people are looking for. God starts shifting events. This is a building of judgment, so the last thing they're expecting is mercy."

But after more than 40 years of legalized abortion, out-of-wedlock births have increased, and the plight of poor women has worsened.

WELCOME TO A

LIVING HELL

The paths pregnant mothers take – or are forced to take – to land in this category of need can be horrific.

Not only is abortion violent to both baby and mother, there may also be pregnancy-related complications.

And we're not just speaking about maternal health, although it's true adverse emotional and mental health can be both a precursor to and complication of abortion.

Exploitative traffickers, pimps, and partners rely on abortion as birth control and may not take well to a pregnant mother choosing life.

The pit of hell is bottomless, and Satan continues to dig deeper, doing his utmost to degrade and annihilate we who are... the only beings God created in His own image.

We are reminded of the quote by Randy Alcorn of Eternal Perspective Ministries:

*The best of life on Earth is a glimpse of Heaven;
the worst of life is a glimpse of hell.*

The tragic figures in this category are not just “glimpsing” hell. They're in it. Hell on earth. Let's partner with God and pull them out.

Basic

COLLABORATE

Partner with assistance providers to serve pregnant and parenting moms in need

How collaborating will serve your church

Pastoral confidence: Leaders encountering needs in this category know the problems, while not too big for God to handle, are likely too big to handle themselves.

When ministering to a pregnant mother suffering from addiction, abuse, or a mental disorder, two lives hang in the balance. Specialized help – and sometimes specialized housing – are needed to ensure the health and safety of both mama and baby. We’ve done the scouting and vetting and have resources ready for you.

Life skills: If a pregnant mother is in bondage to a personal vice or other people, we want her to receive help and healing. The outcome is a healthier person to care for her healthier baby in a healthier way - and a healthier member of the body of Christ.

Services to your church: Assistance providers can lead recovery and mental health support groups for your congregants. They can also train your staff and leaders on signs to identify sex trafficking and abuse victims and women in mental distress.

How collaborating will serve your community

This is a messy category – one where affected women may feel judged by the collective Church. “Come as you are”? Many don’t believe that.

Did You Know?

Abortion is statistically linked to elevated risks of suicide attempts and completed suicide, sleep disorders, addiction or misuse of drugs and/or alcohol, bi-polar disorder, depression, anxiety, post-traumatic stress disorder, anger or rage, difficulties parenting, increased risk of premature death, and other emotional and mental health issues.

– “Anticipating Abortion Risks to Mental Health,” Elliott Institute
tinyurl.com/HerPLAN5A1

Your church can be a refuge to those struggling in these areas who would normally – rightly or wrongly – feel hesitant to seek spiritual counsel.

Yours can be known as the church of compassion and acceptance, one to which your partnered assistance providers will be comfortable sending these lost souls for love and acceptance – just as they are.

FEARS WITHIN

*Just as I am, poor, wretched, blind
Sight, riches, healing of the mind
Yea, all I need, in Thee to find

I was stuck in the bottomless pit of addiction. At the time of my abortion, it was just darkness for me. I was clawing at the walls of the endless void; I was stuck trying to find a way out....

I was a heroin addict... and at the time was in and out of detoxes, and that's where my abortion story starts.

HER MIND
AT THE
TIME

As part of the check-in process for every female a pregnancy test is required, and as it turns out, I was pregnant. I burst into tears because I knew what I had to do. In my mind it [abortion] was the only solution.... I didn't want a heroin baby, and I didn't want to destroy a child.

They gave me my first pill at the clinic. I went home to wait until I needed to take the next pill. While I waited, I talked to my stomach, to the embryo, explaining myself, telling it how sorry I was. I cried as I said I'm so sorry. I'm sorry I can't be your mother. I'm sorry I can't bring you into this world.

Eventually it was time to take the pills. About an hour later I felt the worst cramps I have ever felt. I ran to the toilet. I felt something hard exiting. It was the embryo. I felt horrible...an embryo that would have been a baby, an embryo that could have been a boy or a girl and had a life and children of their own and because of me was sitting at the bottom of a toilet, because I was too busy getting high to really think about better contraception.

I prayed over the embryo in the toilet – prayed that they would know how sorry I was. I must have sat there for over an hour. I couldn't bring myself to flush the toilet, but I eventually did. But right before I flushed it, I made the sign of the cross over the toilet (I grew up Catholic).

I wish I could tell you I got clean that time, but I didn't. It took some more things to happen and a few more detoxes and a rehab....

Did You Know?

The prevalence of Intimate Partner Violence (IPV) was nearly three times greater for women seeking an abortion compared with women who were continuing their pregnancies.

A review of 74 studies confirmed IPV is even more strongly associated with repeat abortion. Findings support the concept that violence can lead to pregnancy and to subsequent termination of pregnancy, and that there may be a repetitive cycle of abuse and pregnancy.

Homicide is a leading cause of death during pregnancy. In the majority of cases, the murderer is the woman's intimate partner.

The unpardonable sin?

Twenty years ago, I had my abortion. The week before I had my abortion, I was sitting in my seat in my pew at my church. The week after my abortion I was sitting in my pew at my church.

For the last 20 years, I've sat in that same seat, in the same pew. Never once has there been a message in our church offering hope and healing, and as a result I assumed it must not only be the unspeakable sin, but therefore the unforgivable sin....

If you think you are doing something compassionate by not bringing this issue up, by being the priest or Levite avoiding it and just hoping it will go away, and you're helping people, you're not.

Did You Know?

Every 73 seconds an American is sexually assaulted, and every 9 minutes that victim is a child.

Sexual abuse is rampant in our nation. Statistically, 30-40% of your congregation has experienced some form of sexual violence. These are deep and lasting wounds that many people carry around in suffocating silence.

“Compassion in Action: A Guide for Faith Communities Serving People Experiencing Mental Illness and Their Caregivers”

CENTER FOR FAITH AND OPPORTUNITY INITIATIVES, U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

Theological structure: Secular, with Interfaith scope

hhs.gov/sites/default/files/compassion-in-action.pdf

Details: Offers a way for leaders to address mental illness in their community and to identify the small steps they can take to put their compassion into action.

Advice, counsel, and suggested resources were distilled from three meetings with over 75 faith leaders, academics, caregivers, and mental health professionals.

The hope is for faith communities across the country to step more boldly into the work of supporting people, their families and caregivers, and communities as they cope with mental illness.

Did You Know?

One in four people who seek treatment for mental disorders do so from a clergy member, and by higher proportions than from psychiatrists (16.7%) or general practitioners (16.7%).

Nearly one-quarter of those seeking help from clergy in a given year have the most seriously impairing mental disorders. The majority of these people are seen exclusively by the clergy, and not by a physician or mental health professional.

HEARTBEAT INTERNATIONAL

Theological structure: Interdenominational
tinyurl.com/HerPLAN5C12

Details: Recent attacks on pregnancy centers have referenced claims from scientific literature that the relative risk of mental health problems following a single elective first-trimester abortion is of no greater risk to mental health than carrying that pregnancy to term.

Yet, the voices of women we work with and their stories speak loudly to something completely different. How do we reconcile this? (A recorded webinar.)

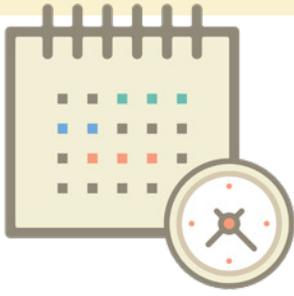

McNeal said investigators had chastised her for seeing a spiritual adviser instead of a psychiatrist while she was suffering from depression after the abortion.

I told them, ‘Oh, really? For me, growing up in the Black community, that’s how we cope with everything — we go to church and we talk to our pastor or spiritual adviser,’ she said....

McNeal said that as a Christian, she felt guilt about the abortion, which she underwent so she could compete in the 2020 Games. She said she was even more crushed when the Games were postponed until 2021, because the delay meant she could have had the baby after all.

Eugenics is the selective breeding of human beings, designed to eliminate the “imperfect” from among us.

Influenced by his cousin Charles Darwin’s theory of natural selection, British scientist Francis Galton first coined the term “eugenics” in 1883, for the concept of selectively breeding humans to garner higher quality stock.

In early 20th century America, eugenics was considered a legitimate pursuit – that is, until the Nazis decimated its reputation in the 1930s and 40s.

Although the term fell from grace, the concept lived on, and in 1956, when amniocentesis was first used for genetic testing, eugenics invaded the womb. Today, it is masked by the euphemism, “a woman’s choice.”

What a choice. From the December 2020 Atlantic article, “The Last Children of Down Syndrome,” (u.nu/lastchildren) by Sarah Zhang:

Activists have pushed back against the subtle and not-so-subtle ways the medical system encourages women to choose abortion....

In the interviews I’ve conducted, and in interviews [anthropologist Stina] Lou and researchers across the U.S. have conducted, the choice of what to do after a prenatal test fell disproportionately on mothers.

For the women in Lou’s study, ending a pregnancy after a prenatal diagnosis was very different from ending an unwanted pregnancy.

Exhibit at Kansas State Fair, 1920s

These were almost all wanted pregnancies, in some cases very much wanted pregnancies following long struggles with infertility. The decision to abort was not taken lightly.

For some who end up choosing abortion, “their own self-understanding is a little shaken, because they have to accept they aren’t the kind of person like they thought,” [Lou] said.

They were not the type of person who would choose to have a child with a disability.

One woman I’ll call “L” told me how terrible it was to feel her baby inside her once she’d made the decision to terminate. In the hospital bed, she began sobbing so hard, the staff had difficulty sedating her.

The depth of her emotions surprised her, because she was so sure of her decision. The abortion was two years ago, and she doesn’t think about it much anymore. But recounting it on the phone, she began crying again.

Let’s help mothers “choose” the better way.

COLLABORATE

Partner with assistance providers to serve pregnant and parenting moms in need

How collaborating will serve your church

Pastoral confidence: As prenatal testing expands, church leaders should anticipate the need to counsel a woman or couple who has received devastating news about their preborn baby, usually one of four life-limiting diagnoses:

- Disability
- Medical condition
- Possibly fatal or life-threatening physical condition
- Baby has died in utero

Unfortunately, in the first three cases many medical professionals (doctors, social workers, genetic counselors, etc.) pressure a woman to the hopeless decision to abort.

Therefore, it is important to plug her into a hope-filled network of assistance providers and doctors who are life-affirming during this frightening and confusing time, and who you know will offer sound guidance. This network includes perinatal hospice providers if the baby may die after birth.

Services to your church: You will be armed with resources for the family as well as objective information about common maladies.

Our providers will also help your church prepare to accommodate and welcome these children into your fold.

If there is a miscarriage or loss, your church will know how best to comfort the family – what to say and do and not say and do.

How collaborating will serve your community

Your sensitivity and planning in this category will provide you with an important outreach tool to your community. Families with children who have special needs will know they will be accepted, cared for, and loved by your church.

R.S.V.P.

Then Jesus said to the man who had invited him, “When you host a dinner or a banquet, do not invite your friends or brothers or relatives or rich neighbors. Otherwise they may also invite you in return and you will be repaid. But when you host a banquet, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, the blind, and you will be blessed. Since they cannot repay you, you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous.”

– Luke 14:12-14, BSB

How your church can serve and collaborate with life-affirming providers

Internships: Do your partnering assistance providers in this category offer internships? If not, ask them to consider doing so. Along with helping the provider, this will reinforce the value of life and life-affirming work to your high school and college students while satisfying service hours required by many schools. Win, win, win!

Will we be surprised by who the teachers are in Heaven?

Finney was engrossed in the speaker’s words.

This one had the wisdom of a thousand mentors. His face seemed almost a hybrid of a child’s face and angel’s face. Why was this face so familiar?

Of course, Finney thought. It was the pure delighted face of what was called on earth the Down syndrome child. This professor around whom gathered the students of heaven, some of them once professors on earth, was a Down’s child, rather a man with the enduring qualities of a child. How had he obtained such wisdom and eloquence?

Finney theorized he might even be part of a unique order of being, a special strain of Adam’s race. Not a genetic accident, inferior to the norm, but one challenged in some conventional senses yet in profound and invisible ways superior to the norm.

He listened as the man, this eternally young man, spoke.

“I who stand before you today, and all those of my kind, are testimonies to the truth written in still another place: ‘But God chose the foolish things of the world to shame the wise; God chose the weak things of the world to shame the strong.’”

This child had been “handicapped” in the other world. The majority, on knowing what he was, would elect to take his life before he was born, or let him die of neglect afterwards.

But here in Elyon’s realm his value was so obvious it showed such thoughts to be unspeakably evil, unthinkable to the sane mind.

JILL STANEK

“I could not bear the thought of this suffering child dying alone in a Soiled Utility Room...”

I am now Her PLAN’s Community Outreach Manager, but I have a backstory to share.

The blunt words on the report were clear. It said we were aborting a baby with Down syndrome that evening. I was completely shocked.

I had been working for a year at Christ Hospital in Oak Lawn, Illinois, as a registered nurse in the Labor and Delivery Department, specifically choosing to work at a Christian hospital because I expected it not to be involved in abortion. It hurt to learn the very place these abortions were being committed was named after my Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

I was further grieved to learn the hospital’s religious affiliates were pro-abortion. I had no idea any Christian denomination could take such a position.

Compounding my distress was learning the abortion method Christ Hospital used - and still uses - is called induced labor abortion.*

The goal is to artificially induce labor and delivery of an extremely premature baby with the expectation the baby will die during the birth process or soon afterward. Some abortionists kill the baby before inducing labor by injecting her heart with a medication that causes instant cardiac arrest.

It was not uncommon for a baby to survive his or her abortion. A Christ Hospital Chaplain told the Chicago Sun-Times, “between 10 percent and 20 percent of fetuses with genetic defects that are aborted survive for short periods outside the womb.”

By my experience the percentages were higher, and survivors could linger for an hour or two or longer. One baby lived for almost an entire eight-hour shift. Further, some babies had no “defects,” as Christ Hospital also aborted for rape, incest, and “health of the mother,” a phrase the Supreme Court defined so broadly as to basically allow abortion on demand throughout all nine months of pregnancy.

In the event an aborted baby survived, she received “comfort care,” defined as keeping the baby warm in a blanket until she died. Parents held their dying baby if they wished. If not, a staff member cared for the baby.

If staff did not have the time or desire to hold the baby, she was taken to the Soiled Utility Room to die.

After this story went public, Christ Hospital created its “Comfort Room,” a small nicely decorated room complete with a First Foto machine if parents wanted professional pictures of their aborted baby, baptismal supplies, gowns, certificates, foot printing equipment and baby bracelets for mementos – and a rocking chair to rock the baby to death (see photos of the Comfort Room on next page).

One night, a nursing coworker was taking a baby with Down syndrome who had survived his abortion to the

*See Appendix A, “Prenatal Development and Methods of Abortion.”

Soiled Utility Room, because his parents did not want to hold him, and she did not have time to hold him.

I could not bear the thought of this suffering child dying alone in a Soiled Utility Room, so I rocked him for the 45 minutes he lived. He was between 21-22 weeks old, weighed about ½ pound, and was about 10 inches long.

He was too weak to move very much, using his energy trying to breathe.

Toward the end of his life, he was so quiet I could not tell if he was alive unless I held him up to the light to see whether his heart was still beating through his thin chest wall.

Once he was pronounced dead, I folded his little arms across his chest, wrapped him in a tiny shroud, and carried him to the hospital morgue, where all our dead patients were taken.

After I held that baby, the weight of what I knew became too much to bear. I had two choices. One was to leave the hospital and work at a place that didn't commit abortions. The other was to stay and fight Christ Hospital's abortion practice.

At that point I read a Scripture I thought spoke directly to me, Proverbs 24:11-12:

Rescue those who are unjustly sentenced to death; don't stand back and let them die. Don't try to disclaim responsibility by saying you didn't know about it. For God, who knows all hearts, knows yours, and he knows you knew! And he will reward everyone according to his deeds.

I decided that to quit at that point would be disobedient. Sure, I might be more comfortable if I left the hospital, but babies would continue to die.

I continued to work at the hospital for another two years after eventually going public. I was finally terminated, but my life had already taken a turn into full-time pro-life activism, which included testifying 14 times to date before federal and state legislative committees.

President George W. Bush signed the Born Alive Infants Protection Act in 2002, which codified into law that abortion survivors are constitutionally protected persons.

A follow-up bill, the Born Alive Abortion Survivors Protection Act, which would prosecute medical professionals for violating BAIPA, has yet to be signed into law.

LOVE IN ACTION

The Bible employs many names to describe God's attributes.

The first use of "El Roi," which means "The God Who Sees Me," was spoken by an unmarried pregnant mother to whom God showed compassion. Her name was Hagar.

Hagar was slave to Sarah, the Hebrew matriarch, who was unable to conceive. Genesis 16 tells us Sarah commissioned Hagar to bear her a child by her husband and Hebrew patriarch, Abraham.

After Hagar became pregnant, however, her relationship with Sarah soured, and Hagar ran away into the desert.

But God was watching Hagar's dismal plight and reached out to her, advising her to return and making a spectacular promise to "greatly multiply your offspring so that they will be too numerous to count."

God's care and compassion are what evoked Hagar to proclaim him El Roi.

We read in Genesis 21 that Hagar again found herself in the desert, forced out of the home by Sarah, but now with born son Ishmael.

This time, God heard not Hagar's but Ishmael's cry after the two ran out of water, and He provided a well.

God cares for isolated and abandoned moms and their children, born and unborn. So should we.

There are many ways to support children, including health care, child care, parenting education, foster care, and adoption.

COLLABORATE

Partner with assistance providers to serve pregnant and parenting moms in need

How collaborating will serve your church

The most immediate and perhaps most impactful benefit to partnering with Her PLAN providers is you will enable your church family to choose pro-life obstetricians, pediatricians, and child care providers.

Other Her PLAN providers will help you inspire families in your church to provide foster care and adopt. There's no need to reinvent the wheel! We will connect you with excellent foster care and adoption ministries and programs to help your church launch and sustain your own.

Then, knowing the drop-out rate for families providing foster care is high, your church can learn through Her PLAN providers how to encourage and strengthen your foster care families by surrounding them with support.

How collaborating will serve your community

Statistics indicate how difficult single motherhood is: 85% of aborting mothers are unmarried, and 61% already have at least one child (gutmacher.org/report/characteristics-us-abortion-patients-2008).

Caring for single mothers in your community is a clear path to saving lives. Folding these women into your church community will help them find stability for themselves and their children.

[T]he traditional rate of retention for a foster family beyond one year is about 50%.... However, for the families being supported by their churches, the retention rate is 90%.

How your church can serve and collaborate with life-affirming providers

VOLUNTEER

Babysit: Ask your local assistance providers if they need volunteers to provide childcare and enable moms to attend a class or counseling session, etc.

Recruit: Encourage church members with a health care background to volunteer in their area of specialty at a local free clinic in our network.

Encourage: Encourage child welfare professionals in your community. Turnover for social workers is high, to the detriment of children in the system.

“How to H.E.L.P. Child Welfare Professionals in your Community.”

CHRISTIAN ALLIANCE FOR ORPHANS

Theological Structure: Interdenominational

Details: Suggestions to Honor, Encourage, Love, and Pray for these specialists.

Internships: Do your partnering assistance providers in this category offer internships? If not, ask them to consider doing so. Along with helping the provider, this will reinforce the value of life and life-affirming work to your high school and college students while satisfying service hours required by many schools. Win, win, win!

RESOURCES

Collaborate: Expand your local outreach by joining:

CARE PORTAL

Theological Structure: Secular; partners with churches
careportal.org

Details: A web platform that connects churches, government child welfare agencies, and other child-serving organizations to meet the needs of children in foster care in real time. Examples of needs: twin beds, car seats, meal delivery, transportation.

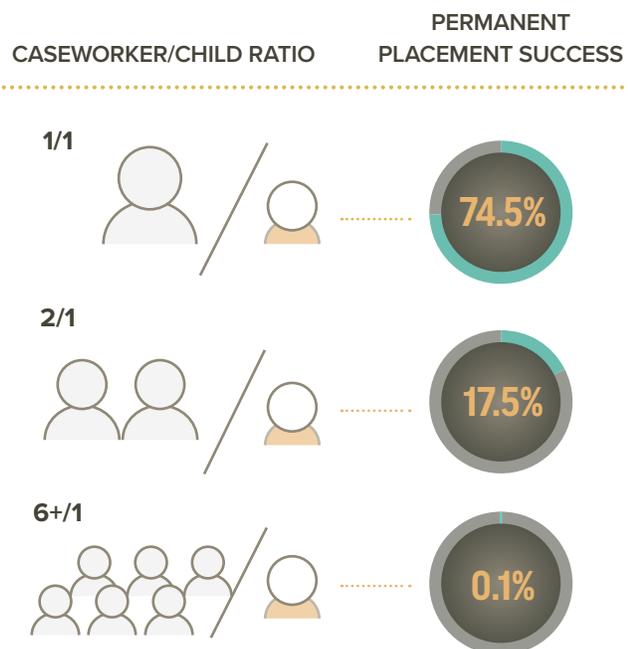

Did You Know?

One impact study done in a local child welfare office in Milwaukee County found that children who had one consistent case worker achieved permanency 74.5% of the time.

If they had two case workers, that number dropped to 17.5%.

In cases where children had six or seven case managers, their permanency rate was 0.1%.

SPACE

Host: Offer space (and childcare) for foster parent association support groups to meet and/or offer to serve as a location for family visitations.

FOSTER FOCUS

Theological Structure: Secular

tinyurl.com/HerPLAN7A2

Double-duty: Offer the use of your Sunday School space to a pro-life daycare provider.

Share: Offer space for a parenting class to meet in your building (which also acclimates nonchurched members of your community to walking through the doors of a church).

Did You Know?

Over 24 million children are currently in single-parent homes (85% headed by mothers), and seven out of 10 of those children live in poverty.

It is well-documented that these children, without strong outside involvement and support, are 10-20 times more likely to suffer problems with emotional adjustments, educational failure, abuse, neglect, trafficking, homelessness, incarceration, addiction, abortion, and other issues.

Having a sustainable Christian-based single moms' group makes it four times more likely she will connect to a local church...

Does your church really want to make a difference in our troubled society? You can go right to the heart of it and reach the most at-risk children before it's too late.

Details: Many churches searching for the “perfect” outreach ministry may find it in the children snuggled in the arms of the people they want to reach. That’s because the most important decision employed parents make is choosing who will care for their children while they work. Families need to have a place where they can feel unconditional love. They want an environment where their children’s total needs are met — spiritual, physical, emotional, and academic. That’s the church!

Details: Church facilities have long been a vastly underused ministry tool, with most spaces left vacant during the week besides an occasional Bible study or evening meeting. By stewarding these unused spaces more effectively, ministries can create a sustainable income stream and an open door for introducing the Christian faith to the surrounding community.

Did You Know?

Currently, there are approximately 500,000 children in foster care in the U.S. It’s estimated that 120,000 are eligible for adoption. With over 400,000 churches in the the U.S., if one person in every 3rd church would say, “I’ll take one,” all of the children would have a home...

Sadly, each year about 26,000 children age out of foster care WITHOUT the support, guidance, care and love of an adoptive family.

ADOPTED...CALLED

Orphan care equals a vast buffet of opportunities to care for the marginalized, abused, neglected and orphaned children and their families.

Not everyone is called to do the same thing, but certainly if you are someone who claims to have been adopted by God, you are no doubt called to do something.

This is a realistic expectation for us all, and a biblical one.

Details: Launching a “Wrap Around” Ministry at your church is crucial to the support and retention of foster and adoptive families. One of the top reasons foster parents terminate their home as a placement is a lack of social support.

It is the Church’s role to come alongside these families with tangible, emotional, and spiritual support – to “wrap around” foster families. Whether you are a 10-year-old who can mow a lawn to help parents spend more time with their foster children, or you are 80 years old and can bake muffins to drop on a family’s doorstep for breakfast, there is a role for everyone in the Church!

Designed to meet the long-term needs of children, ages 1 through 20. Children remain in our care until they may be reunited with their families or otherwise be placed in caring family environments.

- Non-Residential Program

Designed to aid families that are near the point of collapse, helping them create homes that are safe and stable for children. Education and training are provided in areas such as child-rearing and appropriate discipline, household budgeting and shopping, meal planning and preparation, and household safety and care. Families are assisted in obtaining community services such as health care, education, and childcare.

Our mission is to equip churches to provide a chance for parents to get back on their feet and connect with a local church for support while providing short-term care for their children.

Details: Behind every child at risk is a mother in crisis. Unmet basic needs is the most common type of neglect in the U.S., making poverty the leading cause for removals at 65%. Nearly 350,000 children are separated from their mothers every year for reasons of poverty, inadequate housing, illness, and material need. The program is built to empower mothers to increase resilience, overcome risk factors, and achieve stability for their families.

SHORT-TERM CARE, MATERNAL ADVOCACY

Children in these situations often suffer neglect or abuse, and some are eventually placed in state custody.

HER MIND
AT THE

As soon as I saw the pregnancy test, I called my husband at work to tell him the great news. “I’m pregnant again!!” There was silence on the line. “We’ll talk about it when I get home.”

But when my husband came home, he had had a change of heart. He was excited, thrilled to have another child and immediately took me to an expensive dinner to celebrate, where we agreed to name the child Teagan if a girl and vowed to keep thinking of a name for a boy. I was ecstatic. I couldn’t wait to be visibly pregnant again and to give birth again.

That was the first day after we knew. The second, third, and fourth and so on days were the exact opposite. My husband was depressed and angry, constantly low on patience with our 3yo daughter and me. He kept coming up with reasons we shouldn’t have the baby: money, needing a bigger home, a larger income and more childcare.

He wore me down.

The day of the procedure I wasn’t upset. I had come to terms with the necessity of our decision.

Within a month, my husband had left my daughter and I twice. He never came back the second time. We divorced shortly thereafter.

I realize now that no matter how much I wanted that pregnancy, I didn’t want to be a single mother with a toddler and a newborn.

Prenatal Development and Types of Abortion

To view Pathways to Life online with easily accessible hyperlinks, go to herplan.org, or use QR code:

THE VULNERABLE PREBORN

At the federal level, abortion is legal in the United States up until birth. Read on to learn more about prenatal development taking place in the first, second and third trimesters of pregnancy and the most prevalent methods of abortion used during each stage.

The First Trimester

During this stage of pregnancy, the preborn child is developing rapidly. At four to five weeks LMP — that is, four to five weeks since the first day of the mother’s last period, and just 21 days following fertilization (conception) — the baby’s organs start to develop, and the heart begins to beat. These developmental milestones often take place before the mother even knows she is pregnant.

8 WEEKS

The preborn baby’s hands and feet are developing, and the neural pathways in her brain start to form. The child is constantly moving in the womb, although the mother cannot feel it.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter8weeks

9 WEEKS

The child can suck her thumb, open and close her jaw, stretch, and sigh. The baby’s teeth begin to form, and the heart completes dividing into four chambers.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter9weeks

10 WEEKS

The child’s vital organs have developed and started to function. The baby is rapidly moving in the uterus, and tiny nails begin to form on the child’s hands and feet.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter10weeks

12 WEEKS

The child develops reflexes, and can open and close fingers, respond to touch, and make movements with her mouth. The child’s nerve cells are developing rapidly.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter12weeks

Abortion Methods

Abortion Pill

A medical (or chemical) abortion is a non-surgical form of abortion in which the woman takes pills containing Mifepristone (RU-486) and Misoprostol (Cytotec) to end the life of the baby.

VIDEO:
abortionprocedures.com/abortion-pill/

Suction (Aspiration) D&C

A suction, or aspiration, D&C abortion is a procedure in which a suction catheter is inserted into the mother’s uterus to extract the preborn baby. Tools are then used to scrape the lining of the uterus to remove any remaining parts.

VIDEO:
abortionprocedures.com/aspiration/

SOURCE: LiveAction, 2021 liveaction.org/learn/the-problem/prenatal-development-abortion/#ninja-popup-16577

The Second Trimester

13 WEEKS

The unborn baby's fingerprints are visible, and the child's organs are visible through his or her thin skin.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter13weeks

16 WEEKS

The child's toenails begin to form, and his or her face and limbs are much more developed. The baby's heart is pumping roughly 25 quarts of blood every day and will continue as the child develops in the womb.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter16weeks

20 WEEKS

The child's nervous system is developed enough to feel pain. Research by the University of Toronto shows that babies at this stage can feel pain in the womb — even with greater intensity than adults. Almost all mothers feel the baby move by this point in pregnancy.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter20weeks

24 WEEKS

The baby is roughly a foot long, and his or her brain is developing rapidly. The child's lungs are also developing into their branch-like structure. At this age, almost all babies can survive outside the mother if given proper support.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter24weeks

Abortion Method

D&E

A dilation (dilatation) and evacuation abortion, D&E, is a surgical abortion procedure during which an abortionist first dilates the woman's cervix and then uses instruments to dismember and extract the baby from the uterus.

VIDEO: abortionprocedures.com/

Induction

A second and third trimester induction abortion is conducted from 16 weeks LMP to term. The abortionist will usually first kill the baby in utero by injecting a substance that causes cardiac arrest and induces the mother's labor to deliver her baby stillborn. If the abortionist does not kill the baby first, s/he may be born alive.

VIDEO: abortionprocedures.com/induction/

The Third Trimester

At 25 weeks, a preborn child is fully developed and considered viable — that is, with proper medical care and attention, s/he would be able to survive outside of the womb. While medical staff is required to provide life-saving care to a child who survives an abortion procedure, it is unlikely that doctors and hospitals will take intensive measures to rescue the baby if s/he is born alive following an abortion procedure.

25 WEEKS

A preborn child is fully developed and considered viable, meaning the baby would likely survive outside of the womb if s/he were born. The baby's hair continues to grow, and the color and texture can be discerned. At this stage, the child is around 13½ inches long, from head to heel.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter25weeks

27 WEEKS

The child's brain tissue continues to develop, and the baby is sleeping and waking in regular cycles. The mother may even feel the child hiccup at this stage, which may become more common as the pregnancy progresses.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter27weeks

31 WEEKS

The baby can turn his or her head to the side and is very active in the womb. The baby kicks and does somersaults, and develops more fat underneath the skin.

SOURCE: tinyurl.com/babycenter31weeks

Abortion Method

Induction

A second and third trimester induction abortion is conducted from 16 weeks LMP to term. The abortionist will usually first kill the baby in utero by injecting a substance that causes cardiac arrest and induces the mother's labor to deliver her baby stillborn. If the abortionist does not kill the baby first, s/he may be born alive.

Life-affirming? YES

Position statement: Sanctity of Human Life: Abortion and Reproductive Issues

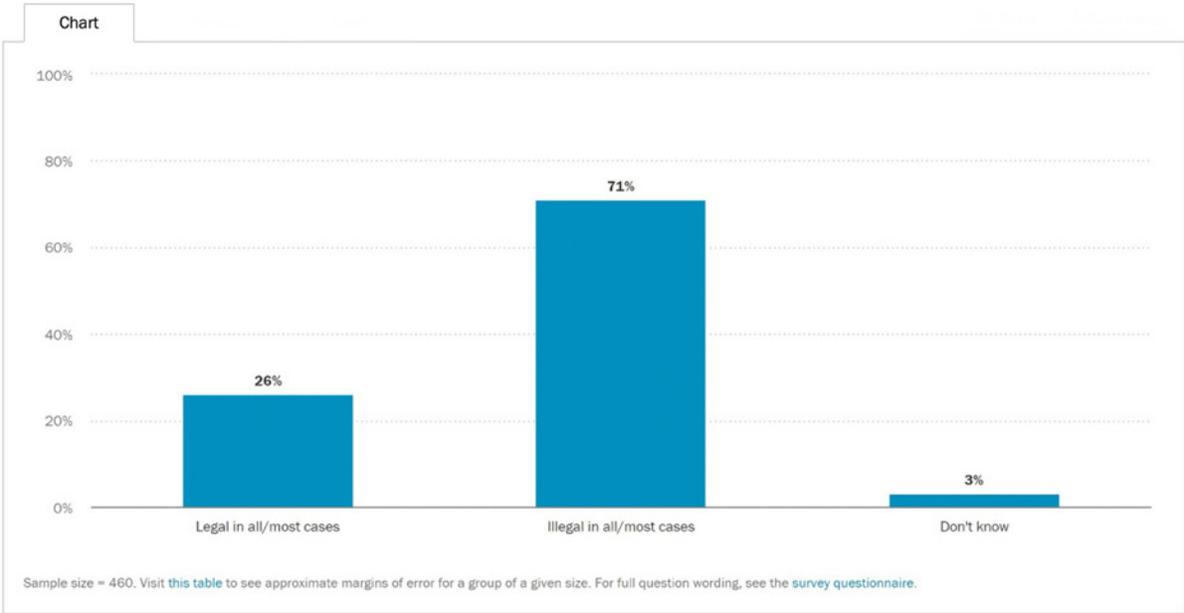

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBa2

“The Assemblies of God views the practice of abortion as an evil that has been inflicted upon millions of innocent babies and that will threaten millions more in the years to come. Abortion is a morally unacceptable alternative for birth control, population control, sex selection, and elimination of the physically and mentally handicapped. Certain parts of the world are already experiencing serious population imbalances as a result of the systematic abortion of female babies. The advocacy and practice of so-called partial birth abortion of babies is particularly heinous.”

BAPTIST, AMERICAN

Life-affirming? NO

Position statement: American Baptist Resolution Concerning Abortion and Ministry in the Local Church

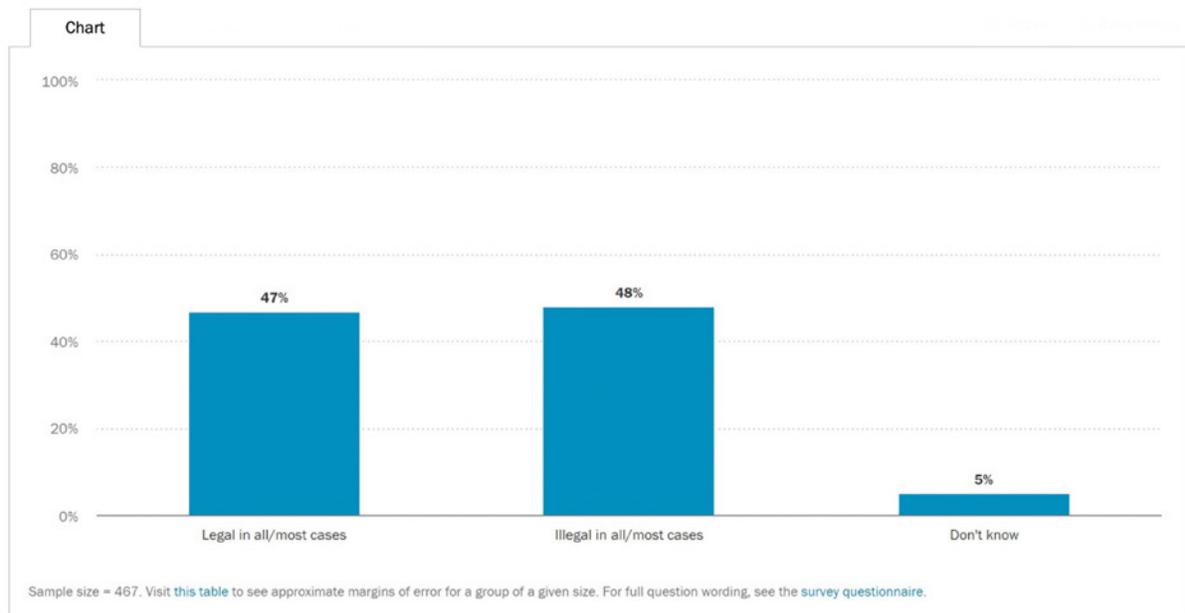

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBb1

“The role of the General Board in this matter is not to direct churches, but to assist them in carrying out ministry and advocacy according to their convictions. Therefore, as a reflection of American Baptist thought, this resolution is offered to assist our churches. As American Baptists, members of a covenant community of believers in Jesus Christ, we acknowledge life as a sacred and gracious gift of God. We affirm that God is the Creator of all life, that human beings are created in the image of God, and Christ is Lord of life. Recognizing this gift of life, we find ourselves struggling with the painful and difficult issue of abortion. Genuine diversity of opinion threatens the unity of our fellowship, but the nature of the covenant demands mutual love and respect. Together, we must seek the mind of Christ. As American Baptists we oppose abortion, as a means of avoiding responsibility for conception, as a primary means of birth control, without regard for the far-reaching consequences of the act. We denounce irresponsible sexual behavior and acts of violence that contribute to the large number of abortions each year. We grieve with all who struggle with the difficult circumstances that lead them to consider abortion. Recognizing that each person is ultimately responsible to God, we encourage men and women in these circumstances to seek spiritual counsel as they prayerfully and conscientiously consider their decision.”

“The nature of this convention is defined by its ideal of voluntary membership and participation at both the organization and individual member levels. As such, the Convention does not prescribe nor exercise administrative or doctrinal control over any of its membership; these matters are left for the attention of local organization and church authorities. The strength of the Convention lies in its ability to harness and coordinate and network the resources and efforts of its membership to accomplish goals greater than those that could be accomplished in isolation. For this reason, the Convention has enjoyed the devoted participation and support of many churches and individuals throughout its history.”

2270: Human life must be respected and protected absolutely from the moment of conception. From the first moment of his existence, a human being must be recognized as having the rights of a person – among which is the inviolable right of every innocent being to life. ⁷²

Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, and before you were born I consecrated you.⁷³

My frame was not hidden from you, when I was being made in secret, intricately wrought in the depths of the earth. ⁷⁴

2271: Since the first century the Church has affirmed the moral evil of every procured abortion. This teaching has not changed and remains unchangeable. Direct abortion, that is to say, abortion willed either as an end or a means, is gravely contrary to the moral law:

You shall not kill the embryo by abortion and shall not cause the newborn to perish. ⁷⁵

God, the Lord of life, has entrusted to men the noble mission of safeguarding life, and men must carry it out in a manner worthy of themselves. Life must be protected with the utmost care from the moment of conception; abortion and infanticide are abominable crimes. ⁷⁶

CHURCH OF GOD

Life-affirming? YES

Position statement: Practical Commitments-Social Obligation

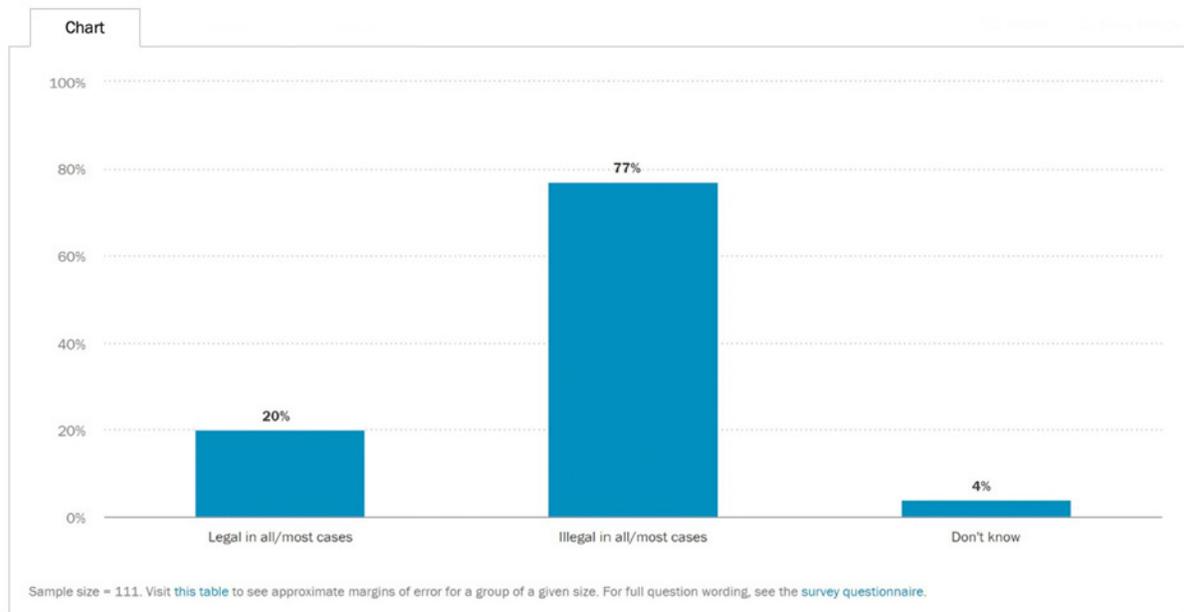

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBc2

“God alone confers life (Genesis 1:1-31); therefore, we are responsible to God to care for our physical life and that of others. If the circumstances require, we must be prepared to risk our life in the service of our neighbor (John 15:13); but the general rule is that we must respect our physical life and employ every worthy means to maintain it. Since God alone confers life, God alone must decide when it is to be ended (Psalm 31:14, 15). Because a human fetus is sacred and blessed of God, we believe that we have the responsibility to protect the life of the unborn (Jeremiah 1:5; Luke 1:41). It is our firm conviction that abortion and euthanasia of aged, mentally incompetent, terminally ill and otherwise handicapped, for reasons of personal convenience, social adjustment or economic advantage, are morally wrong. Furthermore, we believe it is our Christian responsibility to care for the earth and its resources. In the beginning God gave man dominion over the earth (Genesis 1:26-30). This does not, however, give us license to pollute our natural environment or to waste the resources of the earth.”

CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS (Mormon)

Life-affirming? YES

Position statement: True to the Faith

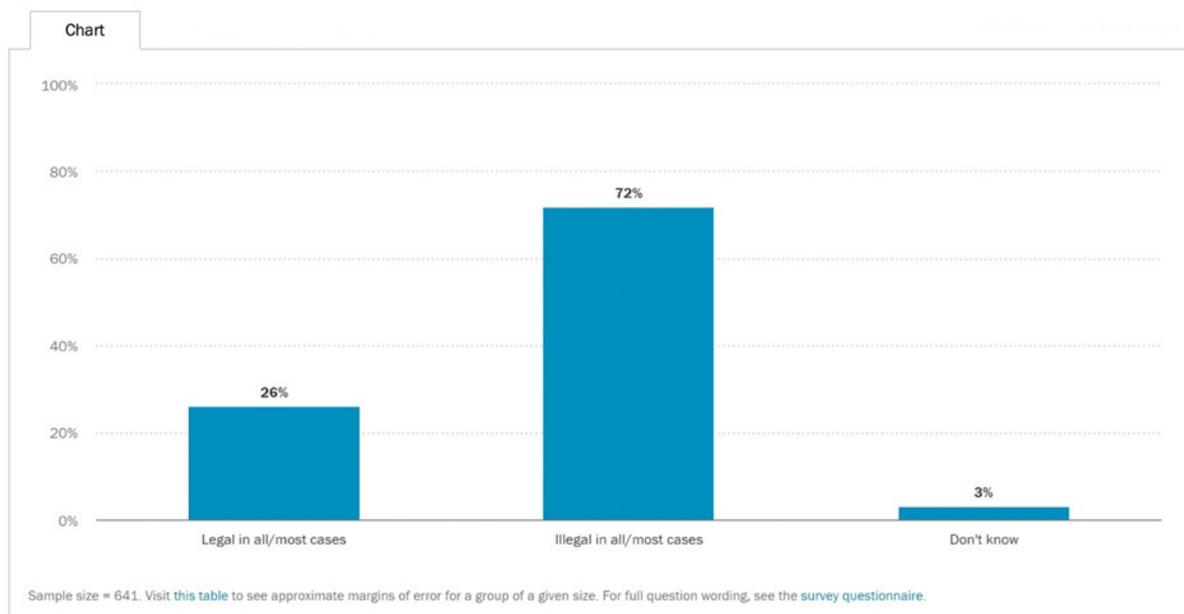

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBc3

“In today’s society, abortion has become a common practice, defended by deceptive arguments. If you face questions about this matter, you can be secure in following the revealed will of the Lord. Latter-day prophets have denounced abortion, referring to the Lord’s declaration, “Thou shalt not ... kill, nor do anything like unto it” (D&C 59:6). Their counsel on the matter is clear: Members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints must not submit to, perform, encourage, pay for, or arrange for an abortion. If you encourage an abortion in any way, you may be subject to Church discipline. Church leaders have said that some exceptional circumstances may justify an abortion, such as when pregnancy is the result of incest or rape, when the life or health of the mother is judged by competent medical authority to be in serious jeopardy, or when the fetus is known by competent medical authority to have severe defects that will not allow the baby to survive beyond birth. But even these circumstances do not automatically justify an abortion. Those who face such circumstances should consider abortion only after consulting with their local Church leaders and receiving a confirmation through earnest prayer. When a child is conceived out of wedlock, the best option is for the mother and father of the child to marry and work toward establishing an eternal family relationship. If a successful marriage is unlikely, they should place the child for adoption, preferably through LDS Family Services”

Position statement: The Churches of Christ... Who Are These People?

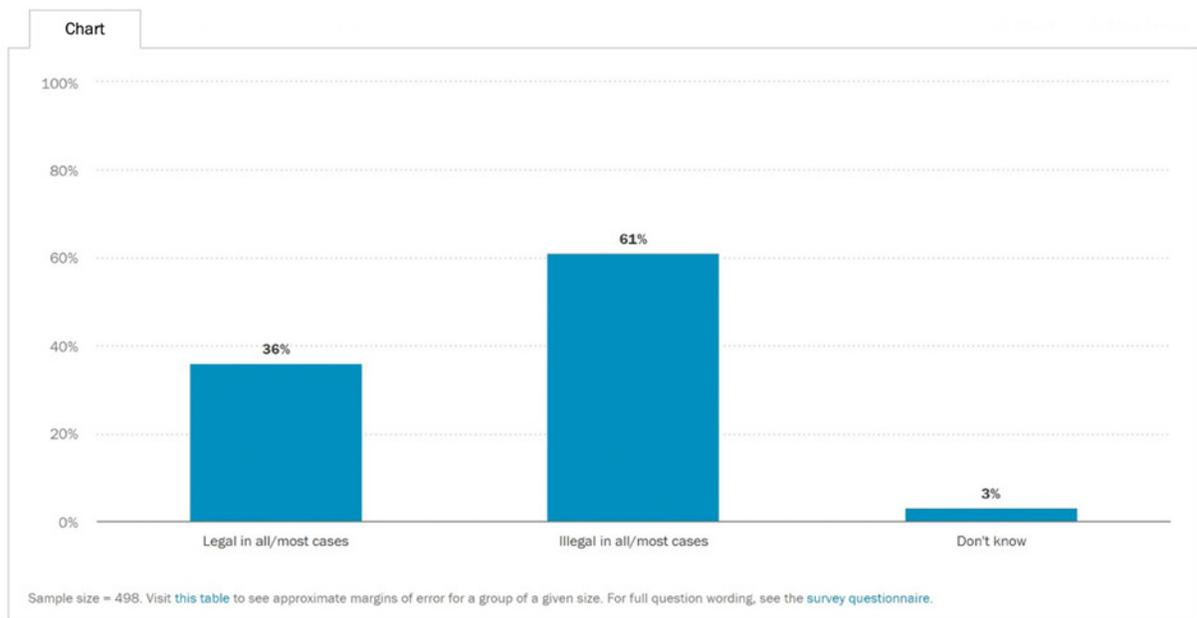

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBc4

“Churches of Christ have none of the trappings of modern-day organizational bureaucracy. There are no governing boards--neither district, regional, national nor international--no earthly headquarters and no man-designed organization. Each congregation is autonomous (self-ruled) and is independent of every other congregation. The only tie which binds the many congregations together is a common allegiance to Christ and the Bible. There are no conventions, annual meetings, nor official publications. Congregations do cooperate in supporting children’s homes, homes for the elderly, mission work, etc. However, participation is strictly voluntary on the part of each congregation and no person nor group issues policies or makes decisions for other congregations. Each congregation is governed locally by a plurality of elders selected from among the members. These are men who meet the specific qualifications for this office given in 1 Timothy 3 and Titus 1. There are also deacons in each congregation. These must meet the biblical qualifications of 1 Timothy 3.”

EVANGELICAL COVENANT CHURCH

Life-affirming? YES

Position statement: 2004 Abortion Resolution

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBe2

“We deplore the use of abortion as an alternative to risk avoidance/healthy relationships/abstinence or, within the covenant of marriage, other appropriate contraceptive measures. We affirm women who continue their pregnancies to full term despite personal hardship, distress, suffering, and even the risk of death. We affirm and encourage women who choose to place their newborn infants for adoption, preferably through Christian placement agencies. We believe abortion to be wrong and grieve whenever an abortion takes place. However, we recognize that in some tragic instances abortion may need to be considered to safeguard the life of the mother. In all cases we urge immediate steps to seek medical and pastoral assistance. Aware of our own frailties and living in an imperfect world, we humbly seek God’s guidance in all matters of sexual behavior, and pregnancy. We encourage the Evangelical Covenant Church at all levels to continue discussion in the whole area of sexuality, under guidance of the Holy Spirit and reliance on Scripture. We challenge our churches, first, to support women—married or single—as they carry through their unexpected pregnancies and the decision of parenting or adoption; second, to provide healing and restoration to those who have been affected by abortion; and third, to educate youth and adults on responsible sexual behavior.”

“Only in this case can the pregnancy be terminated after 120 days. The logic behind this is an agreed upon legal maxim in Islamic law: certainty should not be overridden by doubt. In other words, a potential life (that of the infant) should not threaten a stable life (that of the mother)... Between 40 and 120 days from conception, the four madhabs disagreed, even within their own ranks, and so we will state the dominant position of each school. The Mâlikis traditionally were the strictest in this regard; they opposed any medical technique as a means of birth control (such as drinking medicine), with some even opposed to seeking to expel the semen after intercourse. The dominant Hanafi position was far more lenient in permitting abortion up until 120 days from conception, with some even allowing it without the husband’s permission. Nowadays, many contemporary juristic assemblies prescribe the position held by the Hanbalis; permitting abortion up until 40 days, and only up until 120 days when a pressing need is present (such as rape, or an extreme fetal deformity incompatible with life).”

Life-affirming position: “Judaism is Emphatically ‘Pro-Life,’” Newsweek

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBj2

“Jewish legal authorities from ancient times through the present day categorize abortion as a form of murder. Throughout most of history, it was impossible to determine whether a baby in the womb would be viable once he or she emerged—that this precluded a court from imposing capital punishment upon the murderer of a fetus hardly means that the act is therefore permitted. Jewish law also not merely permits, but demands, that the Sabbath be violated in order to save a fetal life. As lifesaving activity is the only situation in which a Sabbath violation is permitted; were a fetus not deemed alive by the Torah, this behavior would be entirely prohibited. Thus, the NCJW document’s claim that “Jewish law does not consider a fetus to have the status of personhood” is categorically false. But the most fundamental reference to Judaism’s unique perspective is perhaps found in the Mishnah. According to Jewish teaching, Moses was given most of our laws orally at Sinai, and these were only written down when later rabbis recognized that its many details were in danger of being forgotten. The Mishnah, then, is the earliest written record of this Oral Law. And it teaches us that termination of pregnancy is not merely permitted, but obligatory, when the fetus endangers the mother’s life—‘because her life precedes his.’ It could not be more clear that a fetal life is indeed a life. Termination of pregnancy is an indescribable tragedy if the life of that fetus cannot be saved, as well; it is never a ‘choice.’”

“Reproductive justice brings a racial and economic justice framework to the work for reproductive freedom, recognizing and addressing disparities in social, economic and political power and how this impacts access to reproductive health care. The work toward reproductive justice was started and continues to be led by women of color, a population systematically marginalized when it comes to accessible health care. And since building a just society for everyone is a Jewish concern, I am honored to stand up in this movement. We must not remain quiet while barriers to health care place any individual’s health, well-being, autonomy or economic security at risk—something which pregnancy so often does.”

“Because we believe that God is the creator of life, the number of induced abortions is a source of deep concern to this church. We mourn the loss of life that God has created. The strong Christian presumption is to preserve and protect life. Abortion ought to be an option only of last resort. Therefore, as a church we seek to reduce the need to turn to abortion as the answer to unintended pregnancies. ... The position of this church is that, in cases where the life of the mother is threatened, where pregnancy results from rape or incest, or where the embryo or fetus has lethal abnormalities incompatible with life, abortion prior to viability should not be prohibited by law or by lack of public funding of abortions for low income women. On the other hand, this church supports legislation that prohibits abortions that are performed after the fetus is determined to be viable, except when the mother’s life is threatened or when lethal abnormalities indicate the prospective newborn will die very soon.”

The NAE is pleased that some longtime opponents in the debate over the legality of abortion have expressed interest in working together to dramatically reduce the incidence of abortion in the United States. Without compromising our core convictions, we seek honest conversation about ways to achieve this goal. These conversations should build on our shared concerns for human dignity, protecting children and promoting healthy families and communities.... We are grateful for those already working in ministries supporting children and youth, pregnancy care, adoption, single parents and parents of children with special needs, poverty relief, biblically sound family planning, sexual purity and accountability, and marriage strengthening. “[What] is the most effective way to bear witness to our belief that we exist because of God’s love? This belief is at the root of the Orthodox opposition to abortion and to every other detail of the holiness of every human life. Many of those who oppose abortion have worked against a legal climate that has made the choice of abortion a relatively simple thing. The United States has the most permissive abortion laws in the industrialized Western world; there are more restrictions even in the most secular nations of Western Europe. Working to change the legal climate makes good sense and is one valuable form of pro-life witness. It is not enough, however. Harvard Law professor Mary Ann Glendon has pointed out that the United States not only has the most permissive abortion laws in the industrialized West; its social policy does less for women and children than any other industrialized nation. She sees a connection. A nation in which single women, or poor married women, are afraid to have children because they will be left alone if they do is one in which abortion will often be seen as a lesser evil. To see it that way is wrong, from a Christian point of view. But it is also wrong to condemn abortion, without trying to help those for whom bearing a child will involve real burdens.”

“The fundamental task of the church is the proclamation of God’s Word as it bears upon individuals and institutions. The Holy Scripture, which is God’s Word written, is graciously given as the power of God unto salvation for those who believe. But it is no less the absolute authority given to regulate any institution or individual as regards the created life which only God has the right to give or take away. On this basis we believe the intentional killing of an unborn child is a violation of God’s command and authority. Scripture considers such a child a person and thus covered by Divine protection even as a person after birth. Any medical support or historical precedent can only be of secondary authority when we have a clear Word from God on moral questions. Yet as often is the case, a candid evaluation of secondary authorities supports the teaching of Scripture. All truth is God’s truth, and any alleged conflict is thus but a misreading of one area of His truth. We are convinced Scripture forbids abortion. The premise of the personhood of the unborn child and the premise of the universal validity of the Sixth Commandment, if true, necessitates the conclusion that abortion is wrong.”

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST CHURCH

Life-affirming? YES

Position statement: Statement on the Biblical View of Unborn Life and Its Implications for Abortion

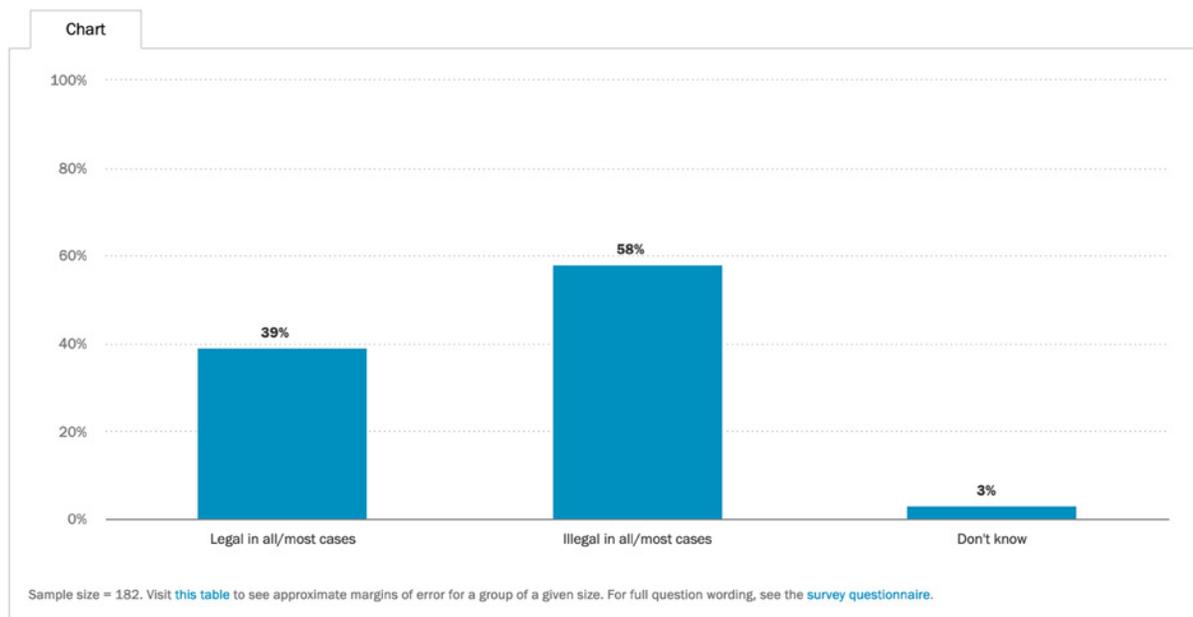

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBs1

“The Seventh-day Adventist Church considers abortion out of harmony with God’s plan for human life. It affects the unborn, the mother, the father, immediate and extended family members, the church family, and society with long-term consequences for all. Believers aim to trust God and follow His will for them, knowing He has their best interests in mind. While not condoning abortion, the Church and its members are called to follow the example of Jesus, being ‘full of grace and truth’ (John 1:14), to (1) create an atmosphere of true love and provide grace-filled, biblical pastoral care and loving support to those facing difficult decisions regarding abortion; (2) enlist the help of well-functioning and committed families and educate them to provide care for struggling individuals, couples, and families; (3) encourage church members to open their homes to those in need, including single parents, parentless children, and adoptive or foster care children; (4) care deeply for and support in various ways pregnant women who decide to keep their unborn children; and (5) provide emotional and spiritual support to those who have aborted a child for various reasons or were forced to have an abortion and may be hurting physically, emotionally, and/or spiritually.”

UNITED CHURCH OF CHRIST

Life-affirming? NO

Position statement: Reproductive Justice

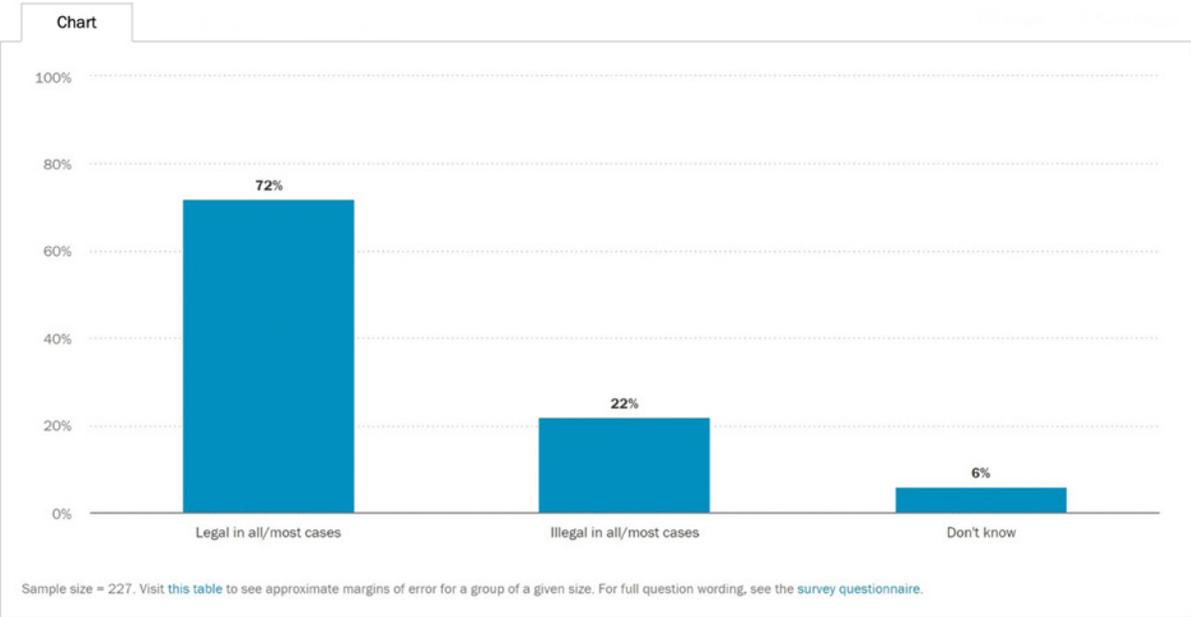

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBu1

“After the Supreme Court decision in 1972, Roe v. Wade, which legalized abortion in the U.S., the UCC has joined with other faith groups to protect women’s equal and fair access to abortion and family planning which have been under attack consistently.”

WESLEYAN CHURCH

Life-affirming? YES

Position statement: Sanctity of Life

Location: tinyurl.com/HerPLANxBw1

“We believe that abortion is the taking of human life; therefore, society brings grave danger to itself by permitting abortion on demand, and thus treating God-given life so lightly. We call our members to oppose this social evil with great vigor. However, we reject the use of violence as a means of bringing about this needed change in society. Except in the case of risk to the life of the mother, The Wesleyan Church stands firm against the evil of abortion—both the personal evil of abortion by any individual among us and the worldwide social evil of abortion, which we believe must someday end. Until that day, we will instruct our people to avoid this sin personally, and call them to the work of enlightening a blind culture, as we once did with the sin of slavery (1996 General Conference).”

*I will lead the blind by ways they have not known, along unfamiliar paths I will guide them;
I will turn the darkness into light before them and make the rough places smooth.
These are the things I will do; I will not abandon them.*

– Isaiah 42:16
